Why is KYC Required for Research Services?

KYC (Know Your Client) is an important regulatory requirement applicable to clients availing research services from a SEBI-registered Research Analyst.

The purpose of KYC is to establish and verify the identity and basic details of the client and to ensure that research services are provided in a proper, transparent and compliant manner.

KYC helps us to:

- Verify the identity of the client and maintain accurate client records.
- Ensure that research services are provided to the correct and verified person.
- Maintain proper records as required under the applicable SEBI regulatory framework.
- Promote transparency and protect both the client and the Research Analyst from misuse, impersonation or fraudulent activities.
- Comply with applicable regulatory and record-maintenance requirements.

KYC information is collected and maintained for regulatory and compliance purposes and is handled in accordance with applicable laws and our privacy and data-protection practices.

Please note: KYC is a compliance requirement and is not related to the quality, performance or outcome of any research recommendation. Completion of KYC does not guarantee any return or profit from the securities market.

We request all clients to complete the KYC process before availing research services so that we can provide our services in accordance with the applicable SEBI requirements.

The reference to the current SEBI framework is supported by the February 6, 2026 Master Circular for Research Analysts, which consolidates the applicable SEBI directions for RAs and specifically includes KYC requirements.
